An update from Alpha Aviation Inc. on Airport Operations and Events at Boundary Bay Airport

The CZBB Runup

November 1, 2026

Updated Blast Wall

As part of ongoing airport improvement initiatives, the blast wall adjacent to the Apron II run-up area has been painted. This work improves the visibility of the structure as aircraft are maneuvering in and out of the run-up bay.

Winter Operations

With winter approaching, preparations are underway at CZBB to ensure the airport is ready for the 2026/2027 winter season. Maintenance has been completed on various snowplows, and staff have been conducting snowplow training to help ensure equipment is ready and personnel are prepared to respond safely and efficiently to winter weather conditions.

Winter maintenance plays an important role in keeping aircraft movement areas, taxiways, and other operational surfaces as safe and accessible as possible. Staff will continue to monitor conditions and coordinate snow removal activities as needed.

Emeline Bennett

Boundary Bay's sponsored athlete Emeline Bennett recently caught up with us after completing her first pre-season camp. She is proud to carry CZBB's support as she trains and competes around the world. Here, she shares an update from Chile and expresses excitement for the season to come.

"This pre-season, we headed to Corralco, Chile, for three weeks on snow. After a long travel day flying from Calgary to Toronto, Bogotá, and Santiago, we collected our bags and began the eight-hour drive to the hill.

Skiing on an exposed volcano means constantly battling the weather. We followed a "keep on skiing until the weather stops us" approach, making the most of our 16 days on snow despite rain and snow interruptions.

Next up is Sun Peaks, where new snow tarping has created some epic early-season skiing. After that, I'm hoping to head to the Yukon for our final World Cup prep camp before racing in Europe this December!

The season is off to a strong start, and excitement is building! The early season always bring nerves as we see whether summer training has paid off, but it's also a reminder of how fortunate I am to do what I love."

CZBB is proud to support Emeline on her journey and looks forward to cheering her on throughout the season.

Business View Magazine

CZBB was recently featured in Business View Magazine. The article highlights Boundary Bay Airport's evolution, from a flight-training hub into a more diversified general aviation airport that is seeing increasing executive traffic.

It notes that since Alpha Aviation took over airport operations in 2004, more than $40 million has been invested in airport improvements and another $45 million in hangar facilities.

The article also highlights how CZBB supports regional economic growth, fostering an airport community of over 30 aviation-related businesses and 1,300 employees.

Other current priorities mentioned include maintaining runways and rehabilitating pavement, improving access, and expanding aviation-related business and hangar capacity.

The key takeaway from the article is that Boundary Bay Airport is preparing for growth while protecting the strengths that have made it successful.

To read the full article, click: HERE